Living Life with a Visual Impairment

- strategies
- with many case studies and tips
- living an independent life from childhood through old age

Bringing a fork to one's mouth, brushing one's teeth, unlocking the front door – our daily lives consist of countless activities that sighted people take for granted. However, for children and adults with visual impairments, these tasks present significant challenges.

But they can also acquire practical life skills. In appropriate learning situations, their potential is unlocked, and they practice managing their daily lives using suitable strategies and assistive devices. This practical reference book explains how to successfully structure this process.

The author, a pioneer in the field of life skills in Germany, provides numerous thought-provoking insights and detailed, vivid examples for learning and teaching in this area. After all, people with visual impairments can cope well with everyday life – with the right preparation.

"An invaluable treasure trove of knowledge, experience, and information" (Zeitschrift Orientierungshilfe, 2021)

Pamela Cory
Mastering Daily Life with a Visual Impairment
Fostering Practical Life Skills
With a foreword by Frank Laemers.
Translation into English by Rebecca Garron.
2nd, updated edition 2026. 110 p. 35 Abb. 1 Tab.
Inner part is colored.
(978-3-497-03399-7) kt
€ [D] 29,90 / € [A] 30,80
will be published december 2026

The Author:

Pamela Cory, founder and long-time member of the leadership team at the Institute for Rehabilitation and Integration of the Visually Impaired (IRIS) e.V. in Hamburg, served as an adjunct lecturer at the University of Hamburg and the Heidelberg University of Education.

Order here!